Let's Start!

It's an important conversation. How do you speak to an employer?

Learning Outcome

Accurately explain information about interests, hobbies, and preferences in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs and work.
- I can talk on the phone in a formal situation.
- I can make and respond to requests.

Ask your partner:

- What jobs do you think are interesting? Why?
- What courses or training do you need for the job?

Let's Explore!

Peter gets a call from a start-up company about a job!

* A "start-up" company is new. It is beginning to hire people and looking for potential clients.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Mr. Warren: Hello, my name is Fred Warren. I'd like to speak to Peter Smith, please.
Peter: This is Peter Smith.
Mr. Warren: Hello, Peter. I'm from MechaTech.
Peter: Yes?
Mr. Warren: This call is regarding your recent application to our start-up software company.
Peter: Oh yes!
Mr. Warren: We need to fill a part-time job at the entry level. We would prefer an intern with your background to do a variety of jobs to start.
Peter: What type of jobs?
Mr. Warren: We want someone to do data entry, research and report writing. We need them to help out where needed.
Peter: That sounds interesting.
Mr. Warren: Could you come in for an interview?
Peter: Yes, I would be happy to. When?

Let's Practice!

Peter and Mr. Warren talk about a job!

Instructions: Read the dialogue again. Select the correct answer.

1. Mr. Warren calls Peter ...
 - ☐ about his job.
 - ☐ about his recent application.
 - ☐ about a full-time job.
2. The company wants someone ...
 - ☐ with Peter's background.
 - ☐ with a good background.
 - ☐ with an interesting background.
3. The job is ...
 - ☐ an intern interview.
 - ☐ a part-time intern position.
 - ☐ a new full-time data entry position.

Let's Practice!

Let's practice speaking. Please be formal!

Instructions: Read the sentences aloud.

1. Hello, my name is Fred Warren.
2. I'd like to speak to Peter Smith, please.
3. This is Peter Smith.
4. Could you come for an interview?
5. Yes, I would be happy to.

Extension Activity

Let's do some research about jobs. Think of a job you want to have.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Look for information about a job online.
- Find out what courses you need to take to get the job.
- Find out the job responsibilities.
- Look up new English words in the dictionary.
- Write 3 - 5 sentences about the job.
- Read your sentences, and tell a partner more things about the job.

Learning Points

Formal Phone Conversations

When you speak to an employer on the phone, you use polite, formal language.

Formal Language	Informal Language
Hello, my name is ...	Hi, this is ... Hi, it's ...
I'd like to speak to ... Can I please speak to ...	Is ... there? I want to talk to ...
This is ... I'm ...	Hello. Hi.

Examples:

• Mr. Warren: Hello, my name is Fred Warren. I'd like to speak to Peter Smith, please.
Peter: This is Peter Smith.

Making and Responding to Requests

You use modals like would and could in formal conversations to make and respond to requests. The modal can is less formal.

A response to a request can be positive or negative, but should always be polite.

Request: I would like to speak to someone in the design department please.

Response: Could you wait please?

Examples:

• Mr. Warren: Could you come for an interview?
Peter: I would be happy to.
